BIOGRAPHY

Arielle Hixson is a powerhouse Journalist, Host and Producer, recognized for her riveting passion for storytelling. She is a true jack of all trades with an expertise in writing, producing, and hosting her own segments for a variety of renowned news networks across the country. Most recently Arielle was an Anchor/Reporter at Channel One News, a national educational news network that broadcasts to six million students across the United States.

Arielle is published in numerous print and digital media organizations including NBC New York, NBC 4 Washington, The Huffington Post, AOL, and CosmoGirl. She also edited content for ABC NewsOne, Fox 5 and HBO. While attending graduate school, she worked as the National Press Intern at the White House.

As an on-air host Arielle is widely known for her unique ability to deeply connect with her interviewee's, making their stories tangible to a multitude of viewers. She has sat down with celebrities including Michael B. Jordan, Alicia Keys, Misty Copeland and Lin-Manuel Miranda. Arielle travelled across the globe reporting on a variety of both fun and newsworthy topics. In her most recent segments she rode elephants in Cambodia, explored Stonehenge in England and caught a wave with one of the most famous surfers in Hawaii.

Prior to working at Channel One News, Arielle was an Associate Producer at NBC New York, where she wrote, shot and produced daily news segments for evening news. She also produced in-studio segments with renowned celebrities and edited fashion, beauty and lifestyle packages for NBC New York Live.

Before she began her career as a broadcast journalist, Arielle graduated Cum Laude from Wesleyan University with a degree in Psychology. She then received a masters in Journalism from Georgetown University.

When she's not in the studio, this multimedia journalist has a deep love for the arts. She enjoys watching films, singing, playing music, dancing, traveling and getting caught up in a good book.
